THE ROCKVILLE RESURGENCE

In the heart of a tight-knit and thriving community just beyond Washington, D.C. rests Rockville Town Square, a shopping, entertainment and leisure destination beautifully designed for residents, families and professionals to enjoy any day of the week. Storefront retail lining the interwoven streets creates a downtown, yet cozy atmosphere for visitors to stroll and socialize.

Whether skating on Montgomery County's largest outdoor ice rink at Rockville Town Square's epicenter, dining at an eclectic homegrown restaurant such as El Mercat or a national fan favorite like Buffalo Wild Wings, shopping at the various unique retail stores, or relaxing and mingling in the public gathering spaces, Rockville Town Square embodies a reinvigorated bedrock marketplace for a booming bedroom community.

A STONE'S THROW TO IT ALL

On the cusp of the district's bustling metropolis, Rockville is home to professionals working in major corporations and government agencies alike. Rockville Town Square benefits from Marriott's headquarters, the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and several additional prominent employers in nearby Bethesda and Washington, D.C. Running parallel to the I-270 Biotech Corridor, Rockville Town Square is also just minutes to the Department of Energy, BAE Systems, Booz Allen Hamilton, and Westat, among many others.

These corporations, government agencies and STEM-related companies attract highly educated talent earning top-tier wages and, in turn, a generous spending power to the surrounding area. Household incomes within a three-mile radius of Rockville Town Square are in excess of $110,000, with nearly a quarter of the population bringing in more than $200,000.
